

the hardest thing to do!

I realize when we think of our Christian life there are many challenges, but I believe “waiting” is probably tougher on our believing than anything else.

There is something innately vexing about having to wait. This issue defeats more dreams, more answers to prayer, than anything else. Whether it's in a doctors office or waiting on God, we hate to endure it.

But people who receive great things have learned to wait. The Bible says Abraham didn't trouble his mind about what God said. In other words, he settled the time issue. He relaxed, fell back in God's arms, and said, “ok, do it your way.”

Until we settle the time issue we will always be anxious and trying to make things happen on our own. But you say, “I've got to do something.”

Yes there is something to do. “Believe.” John 6:29 says, “The work of God is to believe.” So while you're waiting on the promise to come to pass, practice your believing. This will secure your mind, calm you down, and help you to come to terms with the way God does things.

I don't always do well with the way God moves either. I am always trying to hurry things up. But you only wear yourself out, trying to get God to do something He's not ready to do. Relax, lay back and rest in God's promise. You're on a train that will arrive at God's station, but only when He says so. So enjoy the journey!
